A Glorious Celebration of Our Victory Over Tyranny: Independence Day, Westcliffe, Colorado

by George Gramlich

With 33 entrants and over 500 participants, this year's July 4 Independence Day's Parade was one of the most successful in recent memory. Thousands of spectators from all over southern Colorado lined the streets to see a great parade that had an incredible variety of entrants. Led by Grand Marshal Clarence Gill, entrants included the American Color Guard, Custer County Search and Rescue, the Rodeo Royalty ladies, a detachment of soldiers from the 1-66th Armor Battalion, the Sangre de Cristo Community Band, Emergency Medical Services, the Southern Colorado Patriots Club, the Royal Gorge Tea Party, the Wet Mountain Valley Fire Protection District, and a host of others.

The Southern Colorado Patriots Club (SCPC) had by far the largest entry with their theme of celebrating our 2nd Amendment which protects our rights as Americans to be armed. Our victory in the Revolutionary War was only possible because the colonists were armed and there was no restrictions on gun ownership. Without an armed citizenry, tyranny would have prevailed. The same is still true today. SCPC entrants, celebrating our independence by open carrying rifles and sidearms, came from all over Colorado with many families with children marching.

The parade was sponsored again by The Wild West Cowboy Church and the Sentinel. Our heartfelt thanks to parade coordinator Dee Wilhite from The Wild West Cowboy Church who did all the hard work to make this year's parade a spectacular success.

The Southern Colorado Patriots Club marches on July 4: The Southern Colorado Patriots Club entry was by far the largest in Westcliffe's July 4 Independence Day with over 200 participants. Here we see them on Main Street at the start of parade. Their section was over one third of a mile long. They were very well received by the large crowd lining Main Street.

Silver Cliff Town Board Cries Foul at Sentinel Pot Coverage

by Larry Luikart

The Silver Cliff Town Board held their regular scheduled meeting on Monday, July 6, 2015, at 5:00 p.m. Mayor Weber led the assembled group in the Pledge of Allegiance. The roll was taken with all members of the Board present. There were several amendments to the Old Business section of the Agenda.

Old Business included a presentation by Charles Bogle in regard to the continuing discussion of Wi-Fi at the Town Park. Mr. Bogle modified the cost estimate to operate the Wi-Fi equipment from a previous amount of approximately $55/year to approximately $25. Mr. Bogle asked the Town to assume the cost of the operation. He pointed out Economic Development will invest about $4500.00. Peter Michaelson, Town Attorney was consulted regarding the Town being in conflict with Senate Bill 152 in paying for the electricity to operate the Wi-Fi. Mr. Michaelson indicated this action by the Town was not a "subscription" and not being "sold out" concluding there was no conflict with SB 152.

Peggi Collins from CART reported as an informational point, Karen Loucks Rinedollar's contract as the Main Street Manager is not being renewed. Applications to replace her will begin soon.

Jim Bradburn from International Dark Skies read a letter from the organization complimenting the Town on its pro-active approach to the concepts of a dark skies community. He also presented the plaque awarded to the two towns for the dark skies designation. He left it to the towns to decide how they will display the one plaque for the two towns. He also presented the Board with a check for over $10,000 from Dark Skies to recover some of the costs to replace all the street lights in the community to comply with the IDS requirements.

Under New Business, the Board approved the request of the Wet Mountain Valley Saddle Club to close Wood Street and CO Hwy 96 on July 18, 2015, from 10:00 a.m. until 11:00 a.m. for the Westcliffe Stampede.

Sheriff Byerly gave an informative report on the second quarter statistics for activity in his Department. He indicated the new CAD dispatch system came on line in during the second quarter. He is working with the company that provides the system to work out some issues including making it more user friendly. He asked the Board to offer any suggestions they might have regarding specifics for Silver Cliff.

Ordinance #03-2015, R4 and R4(a) the Manufactured Home Residential District, was discussed and after minor corrections was approved by the Board. The park and curfew ordinances were given their first readings. The two Towns are working together to create unified ordinances. The discussions are continuing. The previous discussions regarding the sale of DeWalt Street to Frank Oberlin continues. The Town proposal was presented to Mr. Oberlin and he is considering it. A new lease was approved for copy / fax machine with Xerox. One CD for $75,000 was approved for renewal with First State Bank. The concrete work continues at the Commemorative Memorial.

The Staff Reports were heard. Letters are being sent to those out of compliance with the mowing requirements. Roger Camper made it clear there is no room for negotiations regarding the mowing. Either mow or get a citation. The Treasurer's Report, Financial Report, and the Payment of Bills were approved.

There were no public comments requested at this meeting. During the Board Open Discussion Trustee Behrendt complained about the editorial commentary in last weeks Sentinel regarding ALL the Board being depicted as "Stoners". She said it "was not right and not nice." She continued, "I just wonder if there is any legal thing that can be done about that." Mayor Weber opined that the Marijuana Committee wants facts. He said, "Everyone has an opinion; we want facts." Trustee Lowe stated, "Some publications do not rely on the facts, they just publish opinion and that's about it." Trustee Behrendt stated, "We are doing our due diligence to make sure that its all safe." Trustee Lowe then stated, "Can we get consensus, I don't know, I don't know, Pete might charge us a couple hundred dollars, but if it's defamation, I'd like to pursue it." The Board approved a request for the Town Attorney to look into the possibility that "defamation of character" took place.

(Editor/GG: Geez. What happened to sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me? Grow up, trustees. You're publicly elected officials and criticism comes with the job. Flooding Custer County with high potency pot that will immediately trickle down to our already troubled youth is not worth the few blood-money tax dollars. It is NOT strictly a Silver Cliff issue. It is a county issue and the rest of the county does NOT want it.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not granted to us by politicians or governments. Freedom demands responsible behavior of all citizens and must be consistent with the truths expressed in the great moral and governing guides as The Ten Commandments, The Declaration of Independence, The U.S. Constitution, and The Bill of Rights.

These were the principles that guided our founding fathers and which we believe are still relevant. These are the principles that will guide our reporting and be the basis of all our views.

We will not be constrained by the illogical, misleading and inaccurate thinking and use of "political correctness" but by truth, facts, logic and common sense.

Our Opinion...

From the Editorial Board

CAN'T WE ALL JUST "CO-EXIST"?

On America's 239th Birthday last Saturday, we had a wonderful and exciting parade in our towns of Silver Cliff and Westcliffe, Colorado. There are thousands of small rural towns like these in America but not many had such big parades as ours. Thirty-three entries and over 500 citizens participated, which included the American Legion Color Guard, Fort Carson soldiers from the 1-66th Armor Battalion (who knew tankers could march☺), the Sheriff's Posse Color Guard, about 50 horses and alpacas (we got distracted and lost count), a tribute to a fallen warrior hero Chris Horns, one politician (Run, Ben, Run), Rodeo Royalty, ranchers, restaurants, churches, a local community band, the high school girls' volleyball team, a Christian motorcycle club, our Search and Rescue, emergency medical services, and our fire trucks, and Deer Mountain's. Whew! And that wasn't all. We had an "open carry" firearms entry, the Southern Colorado Patriots Club (SCPC) (by far the largest entry in the parade) and we had an "open carry" guitar band marching. More on that later. And for the first time the Independence Day Parade was kicked off with a Grand Marshal, long-time resident Clarence Gill, and ended with the pretty CCHS Cheerleaders as the "clean-up crew". It was a great birthday, a great parade, and a safe parade. We should all be thankful for that.

Our parade represented the best things about America – liberty and freedom. Many views, especially with respect to our First and Second Amendment rights were well represented. The right to peacefully assemble was represented. Religious freedoms were represented. Freedom of speech was represented and the right to bear arms, or not to bear arms, was represented. For the third time the SCPC, joined by its sister group from Cañon City, the Royal Gorge Tea Party, marched in support of our 2nd Amendment rights and in support of our Colorado sheriffs. About 200 law-abiding citizens marched and rode in a peaceful and non-intimidating manner as our Constitution and state laws allow. Some liked them, some didn't. Conversely, and in clear protest to those groups, the Open Carry Guitar Band signed up to participate. What a welcome entry. They also marched and rode to express their different views of American freedoms and liberties. The difference being that they were "armed" with real and fake guitars, kazoos, and carnations. That was great. Some liked them, some didn't. You wouldn't find a lot of countries where parades like this exist, certainly not in the Middle East. Here we have it all. We are glad that there are those American citizens who are willing to defend our liberty and freedom with guns, if necessary, and who want to make sure that right is never infringed. We are equally glad that those who oppose that view can march right alongside of them. That's what America is all about. It's not about preventing one view or the other. For some in America peace is the absence of war or violence. For others peace is the absence of evil. We all know ISIS is evil. Can you imagine ISIS allowing such opposing views? Absolutely not! The parade rules in one of their parades would be very clear and limited to exactly one point of view. One lady on Main Street turned her back on the 2nd Amendment group. That's fine and was clearly her right to do so. She should be thankful, however, that guns, and the people that are willing to carry them and use them if needed, are the very reason she can protest like that in public. We believe she could do that during an ISIS parade also, except she might not have a head after the parade.

So as we started this column, let's just "co-exist" by respecting each other's opinions, not agreeing, just respecting. The 2nd Amendment followers are still being called names by some in this community. Just last week in the other paper they were called gun-toting lunatics who lack manliness and want to scare those that are less secure. However, we saw no frightened women and children along the parade route. We saw a lot of smiling, happy people celebrating America and all its goodness. "Co-exist" to us means we don't all think or act alike but we can live together. If we all had to think and act alike, the phrase wouldn't even make sense. So, can we "co-exist"? Yes, as long as it's not just a one-sided view of what a parade is or what makes America great. "Co-exist" is mostly just a silly bumper sticker found on cars with other silly stickers like "Hope and Change". Let's make it real in Custer County. You can carry firearms or you can carry kazoos. There are some that will and some that won't. We can still all walk the streets of Silver Cliff and Westcliffe together. But if and when trouble appears on our doorsteps we know which group of citizens we want to be around.

If the federal government should overpass the just bounds of its authority and make a tyrannical use of its powers, the people, whose creature it is, must appeal to the standard they have formed, and take such measures to redress the injury done to the Constitution as the exigency may suggest and prudence justify.

Is It Time to Rethink “Legalization”?

by Richard L. Hilderbrand, Ph.D.,
Penrose, CO

The manipulation of public opinion is the true power in America today. Pro-marijuana forces have been manipulating opinion for many years and have successfully created the impression that marijuana is natural and, therefore, automatically good; essentially harmless; and will create huge sums of tax revenue for the Colorado state and local governments. The truth is that many problems exist in Colorado pertaining to the “legalization” of marijuana. One frequent comment I have heard over the last year is that “if I had known what legalization would bring I would not have voted for it.”

The tax revenue received appears to be significantly less than the projected revenue. The laws in the state of Colorado are built in a way that guarantees minimal revenue for the state. Commercial marijuana is subject to an excise tax; however, the alternative means of obtaining marijuana allow many to escape that tax. “Medical” marijuana is available at age 18, at a lower price, and with low tax; “care givers” can grow marijuana for others with little oversight; a person may grow their own; and illicit sources make marijuana readily available. Much of the revenue for the state must come from marijuana “tourists” who don’t have access to the alternative sources.

Studies on driving and accident rates have clearly demonstrated that the blood level of the active drug (THC) immediately following use is the determining factor in impairment. Colorado has set 5 nanograms per milliliter (ng/mL) as the blood level of THC to be called impaired. This level will miss a large percentage (perhaps as high as 80%) of the impaired drivers. Then there is the additional problem of obtaining an appropriate blood sample to measure the THC and provide legal evidence of the impairment. During the time the person is waiting for a blood test, the body is clearing the marijuana from the blood and decreasing the chance of a positive test. There is no breath test available for THC and will not be one in the future since THC is not expired in the breath in the same manner as alcohol. Marijuana does increase the rate of involvement in and responsibility for traffic accidents.

There are a number of issues related to the medicalization of marijuana; however, there are two key issues from my view. The first is that use of marijuana, the plant, for treatment of the many listed conditions is not supported by solid, controlled, scientific evidence. The June 28th issue of The Denver Post published an excellent editorial (Moment of truth for medical marijuana) citing the lack of significant scientific evidence to show the benefit of treatment by marijuana for most conditions. In addition, patients suffered side effects with disturbing frequency. The editorial stated, “... medical pot should be able to prove its efficacy through the same research methods as every other medicine.” The second issue is the use of cannabidiol for seizures. This again is an issue that has stirred emotions and created an environment where politicians are bypassing the scientific process to legalize certain products due to their sympathy for children with intractable seizures. A recent review of records by physicians at Children’s Hospital Colorado of 75 children who had received an extract of marijuana as treatment for epilepsy was published by Dr. Press and others in Epilepsy Behavior (April, 2015):

57 % had reduced seizures
44 % had adverse effects (13% had increased seizures).

I agree with Dr. Amy Brooks-Kayal, President of the American Epilepsy Society, who says “we have clear and well-established mechanisms to determine if therapies are safe and effective. To have legislatures bypass that process before they have that information poses risks to people who choose to use that therapy.” While I am truly sympathetic to the children there is a certain responsibility for the harm that might occur.

Research from prestigious institutions over the past several years has clearly shown that marijuana use, even on a casual basis, during adolescence produces brain abnormalities. The adverse psychological effects are also well documented in the scientific literature of the past 10 to 15 years. This is a problem that, in particular, damages the future of our community. Colorado’s 12-17 year old marijuana use rate is 39% higher than the national average and the use rate among 18-25 year olds is 42% higher than the national average. In a June 2014 survey of 100 Colorado School Resource Officers (SROs), 89% have reported an increase in student-marijuana related incidents since legalization.

What has really happened is that the revenue is not as high as projected and law enforcement and social welfare costs are not being considered in the balance. There are many other negative effects of marijuana on our communities - such as skunk-like odors, bright lights, negative effects on traffic, and increased social costs (providing for homeless, etc). A great deal of latitude has been given to the commercialization of marijuana by limited enforcement of law - irrespective of the likely adverse outcomes; however, the real question is if everything is about money or if the capability and well-being of our young people and our communities is to be considered? In the situation where “decriminalization” would have been effective and appropriate, the vote brought “legalization” and the outcome has been full scale “commercialization” of marijuana and various extracts.

Thank you! From the Silver Cliff - Westcliffe Cycling Team

Home!! Coming around that last curve on 96 and seeing our beautiful valley and mountain range spread out before us was definitely a sight for sore muscles. The hay-wheeled bicycle on our left was only the beginning of the transition we saw and felt as we rode through Silver Cliff to the bluff in Westcliffe. All the bikes displayed, some decorated, on both sides of the road, and the flowers and flags were symbols of not only the towns working together, but of the community coming together to warmly welcome riders, support people and friends. Quite frankly the last few blocks brought moisture to some of our eyes. The boisterous welcome at the finish line, especially by those wearing the orange shirts, was enough to heal all our aches and pains and make us want to do the ride all over again.

We realize that what made our days of training, the ride itself and the homecoming totally worthwhile were the over 250 volunteers that worked long and hard to make all this happen. According to RTR personnel this was by far the best ending to ride in their 30 year history, and we believe it. For that we thank each and every one of you for the effort put in and hospitality displayed.

State Treasurer Stapleton Visits Custer County Commissioners Meeting

by Paul Sage

Lots of interesting information and news came from Colorado State Treasurer Walker Stapleton in his visit to Tuesday's Custer County Board of County Commissioners meeting. I broke it out by subject matter as follows:

COLORADO HEALTH EXCHANGE MAY LOSE HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS

Explaining the need for the recently authorized audit of the Colorado Healthcare Exchange, State Treasurer Walker Stapleton explained on Tuesday that "the Colorado health exchange is losing a considerable amount of money." He further stated that "Some people think it's losing 50 million dollars; other people think it's losing a hundred million dollars; other people think it's losing a few hundred million dollars."

Mr. Stapleton explained that the Colorado Health Exchange was created by Governor Hickenlooper in response to the federal mandate of Obamacare. "It was the governor's belief that the health exchange could exist as a stand-alone on its own without federal subsidies and the hospital provider fee subsidizing it, but unfortunately it's losing money despite the fact that it's being heavily subsidized and those subsidies are going to go away," according to Treasurer Stapleton.

Adding to the good news of the result of this federal state Democratic party partnership, Mr. Stapleton pointed out that as a result of the current audit, "it's very likely that we might find out now that the Colorado Health Exchange is not going to be viable for the future, in which case Colorado will have to go back to the federal system and it will have to pay whatever costs are associated with the healthcare exchange not working out." He further elaborated, "That could be a significant budget cost for the state of Colorado going forward in future years."

COMMUNITIES LEGALIZING POT GETTING A LOT LESS THAN THEY THOUGHT

That was part of the assessment of the financial impact of legalized pot to the communities that have done so by Colorado State Treasurer Walker Stapleton Tuesday when he visited Custer County on his statewide economic tour of Colorado counties.

Possibly helpful information to anyone in Silver Cliff thinking they will be able to pave their streets and get rich off marijuana revenue was Mr. Stapleton's review of the situation in Pagosa Springs which "has a fairly high number of recreational shops compared to their population, and sees a spike in their sales during tourist season, but is still not getting much. I think they told me they got $130,000 at the county level."

In answer to the question of where the $48 million Colorado made off the marijuana trade in 2014 went, Mr. Stapleton responded that "it has gone to the communities. Some of it has gone to the 'Best Program'. Some of it has gone into the general fund and been sucked up. It's been a number of different areas."

Treasurer Stapleton also questioned the often quoted $48 million dollar number saying that "what's concerning from a revenue standpoint is that we had a monopoly, obviously, for six months before the state of Washington legalized and it still equaled a pretty diminimis ('so minor as to merit disregard' Merriam-Webster) amount of money." He wondered aloud whether that is "a result of a flawed system or is that the extent to what Colorado is going to make going forward?" He pointed out that there are issues with keeping track of the marijuana business because it is "still a cash business," and also that "the most regular and repeat customers can get a medicinal card and not pay any taxes."

Mr. Stapleton also shared another discovery he made on his statewide economic tour regarding the effect of legal marijuana in Colorado. He said that "one of the things that came up in Costilla and Conejos and Saguache is the issue that a lot of people come into the community, buy cheap land, use it to cultivate or grow marijuana, take a lot of the water resources without paying for it, not hook up sanitation, be users of county services without providing any money back to the county, and be a real drain on county resources in some of the poorer areas of the San Luis Valley."

STATE BUDGET $25 BILLION, PERA DEBT $26 BILLION

Addressing the 800 pound gorilla in the room, Colorado State Treasurer Walker

Stapleton called the debt of the state retirement program "a problem that needs to be fixed." The state Public Employees Retirement Association (PERA) has been in financial trouble for years. "It has become more in debt every single day that I've served as Treasurer, and I'm in my fifth year now," according to Mr. Stapleton.

In spite of numerous outcries in recent years and half-hearted attempts to address problems with the program it "is still 26 billion dollars in debt," according to Mr. Stapleton. He called that "a staggering amount of money" for the state of Colorado. The annual budget for the state is around $25 billion.

Attempts to keep the system solvent to date have revolved around increasing contributions for current employees. This has become an additional drain particularly on already strapped school districts around the state.

Mr. Stapleton pointed out that "people haven't showed much desire to fix the pension problem in our state." He also added that frequently in similar circumstances it takes a school district or other entity going bankrupt to motivate leaders to bring about the needed changes.

PRIVATE AIR AMBULANCE PROPOSES SERVING CUSTER COUNTY

Representatives of Eagle Med air ambulance service made a presentation for their service to the Custer County Board of County Commissioners on Tuesday afternoon.

The private subscription helicopter ambulance service proposed covering Custer County residents for the sum of $17,000 per year. If some entity in the county paid the 17k annual fee for the service, then Eagle Med would provide necessary air ambulance service for county residents, as determined by county dispatch or medical personnel.

Eagle Med then attempts to recover its expenses for providing the service through the individual's health insurance, with the patient responsible for the co-pay not covered. For an additional individual payment of $35 county residents could insure against having to pay their co-pay.

No decisions were made about any action on the proposal at this time.

County Clerk Debbie Livengood Resigns

by Candi Sage

Debbie Livengood, Custer County Clerk and Recorder for the last 20 years, tendered her resignation. In her letter given to the Board of County Commissioners on Monday, July 6, she cited that she is "going to take the opportunity to retire and enjoy spending more time with Glen, my parents, brother, my children, and my grandkids while everyone is healthy and active and my grandkids like to spend time with grandma. So, it is with great sadness and at the same time great happiness that I submit this letter to you and move on to a new chapter in my life."

The Board of County Commissioners accepted her letter and will open up her position to the personnel in the clerk's office first, to appoint someone to fill the vacancy until the 2016 election. At that time, the position will be open for the voters to elect someone to fill the position for two years until the end of Debbie's term in 2018. In 2018, the four year position will once again be open for the voters to elect a new county clerk and recorder.

Custer County Clerk, Debbie Livengood.

Debbie has scheduled her retirement to begin August 1, 2015. She is looked upon by many in Custer County as a fair and unbiased county clerk, a true treasure in any county office. After spending over 30 years employed by Custer County, her friendly demeanor will be missed by many residents in our county.

A Very Brief History of Television

The quest to electronically transmit images (“television”) was started in the late 1800s but it wasn’t until 1923 that Westinghouse Electric Company’s Vladimir Zworykin patented the iconoscope, a transmission device, and then in 1924 a receiver tube to work with it.

Then in 1928, actual television sets using the Jenkins System named after the inventor Charles Jenkins, were sold to the public using the name radiovisor rather than “television”. By 1934 there were a grand total of 42 stations in the U.S.A. transmitting to the radiovisor owners.

The man most people consider the “inventor” of the modern television was Philo Taylor Farnsworth, an inventor and a 1924 graduate of Brigham Young University who, in 1927, at the tender age of 21, produced the first electronic transmission of an image.

In the years 1926 to 1935 early experiments were taking place with all electronic cathode ray TV, the basic system we have today,. And, from 1935 to 1941 experimental electronic TV started broadcasting in Germany, England, Italy, France, Holland, and the USA. All the sales and broadcasting activity was interrupted by the Second World War from 1942 to 1945 and not until late 1946 did the first American post war TV set, RCA 630 TS go on sale.

At that time there were less than 7,000 sets in the USA. In June of 1951 the first mechanical color TVs appeared on the market but was discontinued in October. Then in 1954 the first electronic color TV sets, the RCA CT100 went on the market at $1,000 per set.

Product research and development continued through the sixties and seventies with many new innovations and improvements made by other countries and companies joining the industry. In 1987 Japan demonstrated their high definition analog system called MUSE. It was not long after that the first digital TV’s were introduced in 1990.

Eagles Summit Ranch Wounded Warrior Graduation Dinner 6 p.m., Friday, July 17th

Eagles Summit Ranch (ESR) is having a graduation dinner for their next Wounded Warrior rehabilitation session on Friday, July 17th.

Pastor Dave Roevers will be the main speaker with the ESR Directors, Beverly and Jerry Shoemaker, being the hosts. If you haven’t yet attended a graduation at ESR, the core of the evening (after the meal) is each one of the participants comes to the podium and tells his/her story. For the vast majority of them, it is the first time they have told their painful tale in front of a public audience. It is a truly moving experience. And it is always great to hear how much these brave men and women appreciate the large, local attendance at these events. They are often astounded at the number of people who come to hear their stories and support them. So, please put this important event on your calendar, July 17th, 6 p.m. Support our Wounded Warriors with your presence. It is important to them.

ESR supplies the main course and asks attendees to bring a side dish to share. Please RSVP to bev@daveroevers.org or call 719-783-9729.

Greetings to everyone as June has passed and we welcome July with plenty more rain in the county. I hope everyone had an enjoyable and uneventful 4th of July to celebrate our nation’s Independence. It was a busy couple of weeks and will continue to be busy with lots of activities going on this month. The American Legion, Lighthouse Pregnancy Center, and All Aboard Westcliffe yard sales, the Fireman’s Dance, and the 4th of July Festivities have all passed. We will welcome in the Bluegrass Festival this Thursday and thru the weekend to round out another week. Of course next week will be the culmination of much hard work and effort as the local youth will participate in the Custer County Fair July 10th thru the 19th. If you get an opportunity, come out and see what the 4-H and FFA groups have done this year.

the highest crime rates in this country being in communities with the tightest gun regulations is proof enough that gun ownership works. Those who live in fear will always be in fear, guns or no guns. Lastly, let’s discuss the parade and open carry. This is a divisive issue but my role as the sheriff dictates I ought to weigh in on it. To my knowledge not one incident in regard to the open carry activity has occurred since the open carry march has started. This is probably because 98% of all gun owners are responsible and respectful in regards to weapons. Those who are not responsible are held accountable by the other 98% and irresponsible owners won’t participate because it wouldn’t be tolerated. Is there a potential for an incident? Sure there is, but probably less than every other day on Main Street. If I had intentions to do harm in a public forum, I certainly wouldn’t pick a day with 300 well-armed civilians walking around. The Sheriff’s Office does our best to help ensure nothing is going to happen, but the potential for a mishap is more probable with a vehicle than with a weapon. Quite honestly, it doesn’t bother me, and truth be told, as the 2nd Amendment and the state constitution guarantees, we couldn’t stop those wishing to carry, even if we wanted to. So we take the appropriate precautions and make plans to deal with possible situations if they were to occur. This may not be popular with everyone, but it is realistic and practical.

There was no question posed this week but it was requested I talk for a minute about my stance on the 2nd Amendment, the new gun laws, concealed carry, and thoughts on the open carry in the parade.

I think anyone who was paying attention during the election cycle is pretty clear on my stance on the 2nd Amendment and guns in general. I believe the Second Amendment is a guarantee which shall not be infringed upon. It is very clearly written and no point in rehashing. As with any law enforcement official in the state who is not trying to play politics, we all know the new gun laws are unenforceable. The magazine capacity law is ridiculous as anyone who has any knowledge of guns understands this law is pure politics and pandering to an uninformed public. A ten-round capacity magazine will do an extreme amount of damage in the hands of the wrong person, just as a 30-round magazine can save many lives in the hands of the right person. There are so many high capacity magazines in circulation, this was nothing more than pandering, plain and simple and cannot be enforced at any level. As I have said many times, I am as big of a supporter of the concealed carry law as you can be. It is good for our country and it is good for public safety. The simple fact that responsible gun owners are constantly thwarting criminal behavior is proof enough. Sure we don’t hear about it, but that doesn’t sell newspapers. The easily defendable fact of

Your vigilance and assistance with suspicious activity or criminal behavior is valuable and a resource we appreciate. If you have questions, comments, or want to report suspicious activity, please contact the Sheriff’s Office at 783-2270 or anonymously on the TIPS line, at 783-2847.

*Until next time,
may you be blessed,
Sheriff Shannon Byerly*

Cañon City Police Department's Citizens Police Academy 2015

by Barbara Penezic

Interested in a career in law enforcement or just wanting to be a well-informed resident of our community; CCPD ‘Citizens Police Academy’ was ready, willing, and able to answer all questions. This eight-week course coordinated by Jen O’Conner, Cañon City Police Department Crime Prevention Coordinator, offered a unique opportunity for area residents to become informed about what the men and women of the CCPD do on a daily basis as they stand ready to ‘Protect and Serve.’

The course began with an introduction to Policing and the Criminal Justice System. District Attorney Thom La Doux spoke of the importance of accurate police reports. The financial aspects of getting cases to court and the necessity for plea bargaining. Lieutenant William Ray, Captains Alan Cooper and Jim Cox enlightened the group about their particular duties and the evening was rounded out by an in-depth tour of the facility. The next two weeks were devoted to gleaning an understanding of the importance of detailed record keeping and a peek into the day-to-day happenings in Traffic Law. This basic part of Law Enforcement is key to keeping the traveling public safe but these men and women may not always be the most popular with the public. Dispatch and 911 receive numerous calls and often times the calls are accidental or even the result of a child playing with the phone. Each call must, however, be responded to and treated as an emergency. Then the class was given information about Crime Prevention, the challenges of being a School Resource Officer, and an informative look at Animal Control.

The Cañon City Police K-9 Unit was indisputably enjoyed by one and all. Cpl. Neal Cyr, handler, introduced Duke, a 2-year-old Belgian Malinois from Holland. Cpl. Cyr explained, “Duke has some advantages over other weapons. He can’t be used against an officer, unlike a bullet he can go around corners, and once deployed he can be recalled.” A short demonstration of Duke’s ability to quickly take – down a suspect and respond to the handler’s recall was both alarming and convincing. The course also covered Officer Safety, Crime Scene Processing, Use of Force, and Arrest Control. The final week was dedicated to a tour of the jail, Firearms and Things that go Boom, and of course cake and a Graduation Ceremony.

Chief Shultz offered his congratulations and expressed gratitude to all the graduates for giving of their time to become enlightened, “your help for us is just critical, we are going to try to form a Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association. Over time as it grows that is when I think we’re really going to see a difference in our town.” Deb Taft, a graduate reminded the Chief and attending officers it is we who appreciate all of you. “It isn’t just a job with all of you, you really have the passion and heart, any manual can be out there but if you don’t have the heart ... that is why we appreciate you.” If you missed this year’s Academy, you can receive information on how to register for next year’s Academy by contacting O’Connor at jloconnor@Cañoncity.org and you can still be involved in direct communication with the CCPD. Plan to attend ‘Coffee with a Cop.’ Chief Paul Schultz and a patrol officer will meet with citizens in area coffee shops during the month of July. The idea is to sit down over a cup of coffee and have an open conversation about any topic that involves the police department. The informal coffee shop meetings should last about one hour. The first meeting will be held at Coyote’s Coffee Den (St. Thomas More Hospital location), 1338 Phay Ave. July 7th, 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. Future meetings are scheduled for July 8th, 10th, 14-16th, and 21st at various locations throughout the city.

For further information contact Lieutenant William Ray at 719-276-5600. In addition you may want to mark your calendar for August 4th. CCPD will be hosting their second annual National Night Out Against Crime at Rudd Park in Cañon City from 5 to 7 p.m. According to Jen O’Connor CCPD, “NNO is a community event to celebrate our great city and how together, we can keep Cañon City a safe place to live, work, and play. If you know of an organization or company that would like to support this effort, we are looking for volunteers and donations.”

Florence Charter School Working to Become a Reality

by Charlotte Burrous

A group of residents recently made progress in creating a charter school in Florence when it decided on a model to use for its curriculum. “(Our school will be) Montessori-inspired,” said Svetlana Piltingsrud, one of the organizers. “We’ll be basing it off of an existing school in Golden, (which) has (been in existence) for 18 years.”

This curriculum follows the philosophy, where students are treated as individuals and learn at their own pace, she said. “It will be a project-based school, but farm emphasized,” Piltingsrud said. “Instead of having classes or subjects, the students will have occupations and each student will learn each subject (for a specific occupation) like chemistry, culinary class, mechanics, math and physics. Parents may say they don’t want their child to work, but it’s not exactly work; it’s still schooling. You’re doing some kind of project.”

The group will devise a curriculum then present it to the Colorado League of Charter Schools, who will make suggestions on what needs to be changed then the group will present it to the Florence-Penrose School Board for approval. Once that process is finished, she expects the school to be open in August 2017.

The group still needs volunteers to join them in this new venture, especially those who are familiar with legal, education, and financial matters. “It’s a long process to fill out the application,” she said. For more information on the charter school, call Piltingsrud at 214-1493 or e-mail florencecharter@gmail.com or on Facebook.

Dental Care Event Coming Soon

by Barbara Penezic

Volunteers are needed to assist with the 9th Annual Colorado Mission of Mercy event that will be held in Cañon City, August 14-15th, at Harrison School on Field Avenue. The clinic will offer services to those who can’t afford dental care, including fillings, extractions, cleaning, and root canal treatments.

About 1,500 residents of all ages will receive approximately $1 million dollars in dental care on a first come, first serve basis. Among the many volunteer services needed will be a need for someone to build a free standing, portable mister to keep people cool as they wait outside in line. Organizers met with community members during a volunteer meeting Tuesday at the Cañon City School Administration Office. COMOM director, Dr. Pam Dinkfelt, said there are numerous areas where volunteers are needed. “We usually have over a thousand volunteers, and we are approaching 700. We are about half way there with the dentists, we need lots and lots of dentists, and also dental lab technicians.” There will be a need for CNAs and nurses to take medical histories, and non-medical people to escort patients, help with food services, and other duties.

“I thought this was a worthy cause that I wanted to be part of,” said local resident Charles Pearce, “I was impressed with the people who are donating their time, I am open to helping wherever they need me.” You need not be a person with medical training or other professional skills to volunteer for this worthwhile cause. Volunteers will be needed in many areas from bagging ice to directing traffic and parking. The event will need to borrow cafeteria grade toasters and microwaves. Bo Cruz, a retired dental assistant, plans to volunteer for the upcoming event, “It is a wonderful program for people who don’t have money and have let their teeth go.”

Doors open at 6 a.m., August 14-15, in the gym at Harrison K-8 School, 920 Field Avenue. Dinkfelt suggests patients arrive early. “The dentists will be there until 6 or 7 p.m. but the clinic will close for new patients when we are at capacity. In Brighton, we literally opened the door and closed the door ... when it’s full, it’s full,” she said. The next volunteer meeting will be at 6 p.m., July 28th at Harrison K-8 school. For more information, email pamCOMOM@aol.com or call 720-415-4636. Prospective patients may call 719-415-4327.

The Daily Jot

Daily reporting and analysis of current events from a biblical and prophetic perspective.

NOTE: When writing about God and Jesus, The Daily Jot means YHVH as God and Yeshua Ha Mashiach as Jesus--the actual original names and the true nature and character of them.

A Prophetic People
Can Prevail

I spent this past weekend in the place of my roots, Northeastern Ohio. From Thursday through Sunday night, there were Fourth of July celebrations. Young kids dressed in red, white, and blue, stars and stripes swimming trunks, teens wearing USA baseball caps, young men and women in patriotic clothing, and of course us older folks with our own brand of patriotism. There is something good about patriotism, about nationalism for America. Throughout the weekend, in most every conversation with folks young and old alike, there were conversations about God, Country and Family. I say this because there is so much bad news about America, but there really is so much good about it within the grass roots.

My son, my wife, one of his friends from college, and I sat around a fire talking about the nation and how it has strayed from God. We talked about Jesus Christ and the necessity of having Him at the center of our lives. We talked about how the Church has given up so much ground to the government and is not effective in teaching the Word of God or holding people accountable to what is right; how it has become a country club in many cases looking inward with self-indulgence and extra-biblical teachings. We talked about consequences of bad leadership and how that contrasts with the judgment of God. We discussed the deep challenges faced by the current generation--not from the perspective of fear, but of hope.

If a boat ride around Portage Lakes is any indicator, there were many other conversations taking place about the condition of our country and its citizens. America is still alive, it's not on life support. There is still a spirit of '76, that revolutionary spirit that defined freedom and equality, fomented worldwide evangelism, and established a beacon of hope for those oppressed around the world. Hope. That's part of what it is about. We have to have hope that we can turn all this around. And we have to act. Hebrews 11:1 says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." If we have hope, the substance of that is faith. It starts with each of us individually. We have to have faith.

There is much written about the coming persecution and the failing of America. While things look bleak, we need to focus on the good within us and around us. We need to start today. If 12 men did what was claimed in Acts 17:6, what can we do? With our faith, the substance of our hope, can we too, turn the world upside down? Yes we can. Believe the good report. Be as Christ said in his Sermon on the Mount "You are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a lamp, and put it under a bushel, but on a lamp stand; and it gives light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven."

Have a Blessed and Powerful Day!

National Tipping Point:
Oklahoma Bans the Ten Commandments from the Capitol.
Brace Yourself for this Next Outrage

by Allen West,
AllenBWest.com

I believe we have at last reached the tipping point. Last week five folks redefined what marriage is for an entire nation — and two of those SCOTUS justices should have recused themselves. A new right was created for a group based on their individual behavior choice.

I just gotta tell ya, this has set a very troubling precedent, as the government is now in the business of granting rights based on behavior. The bottom line is that it seems special interest groups have an advantage as afforded them by a very complicated liberal progressive media. A picture of former Pope Benedict made of condoms by The New York Times is acceptable — but boy howdy, they didn't want to publish pictures of Mohammed.

It's funny, some editor at The New York Times hinted their picture was acceptable because there was no violent reaction. Duh! Christians don't take to the streets with guns and kill cartoonists — so I guess all is good. And we all know about the Virgin Mary covered in elephant dung surrounded by pornographic images. No comparable level of outrage from Catholics and Jews is validation for these actions.

And now, we have this ruling from the Oklahoma Supreme Court — I'm starting to think these folks ain't so supreme anymore. As reported by Breitbart.com, "The Oklahoma Supreme Court has ruled that a monument to the Ten Commandments must be removed from the state's capitol in Oklahoma City. The state's top court cited a clause in the Oklahoma Constitution that it says prohibits promotion of religion. The 7-2 decision says the monument violates Article 2, Section 5, of the state's governing document, which reads: No public money or property shall ever be appropriated, applied, donated, or used, directly or indirectly, for the use, benefit, or support of any sect, church, denomination, or system of religion, or for the use, benefit, or support of any priest, preacher, minister, or other religious teacher or dignitary, or sectarian institution as such. The court also rejected the concept that the Ten Commandments were historic in nature. In its decision, the court insisted that "the Ten Commandments are obviously religious in nature and are an integral part of the Jewish and Christian faiths."

So we get a little bit of revisionist history here as the OK Supreme Court rejected the notion that the Ten Commandments were historic in nature — so what are they, a fairy tale? Perhaps these folks in black have never been to the U.S. House of Representatives, the people's house, and gazed upon the images that are aligned across the upper walls of the chamber. There are the faces of the great lawgivers of history. Every single face is at side view except for one — the face that looks down upon the speaker's rostrum and the president of the United States when he delivers the State of the Union address. That is the face of the man who brought down the Ten Commandments from atop of Mt. Sinai — Moses.

I have to ask, if in the U.S. House of Representatives, Moses is honored as a great lawgiver in history — then what insidious reasoning did the Oklahoma Supreme Court use to reject the concept that the Ten Commandments were historic in nature?

Doggone, the Ten Commandments are the basis for the rule of law in civilized society. The Ten Commandments are not solely about religion, they represent a great moment in history and the formulation of law and a law-abiding society.

You can only push folks around so much for their beliefs and the point will come when the other cheek will not be turned.

Here is the kicker: how long will it be before the liberal progressive secular humanist left demands that the face of Moses be removed from the U.S. House of Representatives? Having a monument to the Ten Commandments at the Oklahoma state capitol is not a sanctioning or establishment of a state religion. However, we do have the federal government punishing states and even the commander-in-chief threatening graduating Midshipmen at the Coast Guard Academy if they do not subscribe to their "new religion" — climate change.

When Thomas Jefferson wrote his letter to the Danbury (CT) Baptist Convention about the separation of church and state, he articulated that he did not want a head of state who also declared himself head of the church. Jefferson feared the state's suppression, prosecution, and persecution of the citizenry based on their religion — which is the reason why the Pilgrims came to America.

Jefferson didn't want religious persecution by the state. Now sadly, it seems that's exactly what we have in America now. Freedom of religion and the free exercise thereof only exists with the permission of the state — just ask the portrait studio owners in New Mexico who were fined by the state. Ask the pizzeria owner in Indiana who received death threats and was forced to close his business. Ask the bakers in Oregon who watched their business be destroyed because their First Amendment right is no longer viewed as freedom of religion but rather... "freedom FROM religion.

Well, that's if you don't follow the acceptable religion. Funny, you know the Catholic priest who was spat upon in New York at the Gay Pride event — are those guilty of that offense "Christianphobes"? Nah, I guess not. Like I said earlier, you can do whatever you wish to Christians and Jews because as The New York Times stated, "There is no comparable level of outrage."

Hate to say this to the left, but keep it up and you may see a monumental change in attitude. You can only push folks around so much for their beliefs and the point will come when the other cheek will not be turned. I do not recommend anyone spit on me — or some of my Christian friends. You will be prayed for, but chances are you may not be standing. As with Islamo-fascists, the secular humanist left embraces the concept of coexistence to mean acquiesce to their demands or else — or else be castigated as a bigot, hater, or any other demeaning reference and disparaging moniker.

Apparently it's open season on those of the Judeo-Christian faith heritage. Marriage is redefined. Rainbow colors beaming on the White House. And the Ten Commandments ordered removed, after all it is just a fictional tale — not historical in nature.

Some would say the culture has changed, but regardless, there are immutable truths contained in the Ten Commandments. You may remove them from man's domain, but there is a higher domain which has rule over us all. And if we continue on this march to remove God — as the Democrat party did from their party platform in 2012 at their convention — then ask yourself, as we are about to celebrate our 239th Independence Day this simple question.

Who then is the grantor of your unalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness? Then ask, who will be the taker of your unalienable rights if God is removed from our public sphere?

Watch out Moses, they are coming for your likeness in the U.S. House of Representatives.

This Land is THEIR Land: BLM Allows a Measly 200 Miles of Public Roads to Remain Public

by ColoradoPeakPolitics.com

(Editor/GG: Tyranny. Plain and simple. Don't forget the RINO republicans in the U.S. House and Senate FULLY FUNDED BLM (and the rest of the corrupt federal bureaucracy) last year knowing FULL WELL what these people would be doing this year with OUR land. This is what you get when you elect RINO's instead of true conservatives to office.)

As victories go, this one is barely worth the effort of popping open a bottle of water or celebrating with a cupcake.

The Bureau of Land Management, whose motto is: "Closing Off Land Is Management Enough," has agreed to defer the closure of 200 miles of trails in the Grand Junction area.

Officials originally asked to keep 400 miles of trail open, so that's half a victory right there – go ahead and pop that water bottle. But, considering the federal government is going to lock us out of nearly one-third or 1,400 acres of 4,000 trails under review, we're not ready to light a candle on the cupcake just yet.

State Sen. Ray Scott (R-Grand Junction) shares our reservations about any deal the BLM is now willing to make, and says it should not be spun as a major step forward.

"The agency never has made a convincing case for why these access points should be closed. This just seems like another way for the agency to arbitrarily exercise power, while pleasing a vocal minority of extremists who want to limit public access to public lands. And the push to limit access couldn't come at a worse time, given the obvious need to more actively manage these lands and the important part that open access plays in our economy and way of life," Scott said.

It's true that the BLM is being tight-lipped about the real reason for closing the roads. But U.S. Sen. Michael Bennet accidentally spilled the beans in a recent letter with Sen. Dianne Feinstein, in which they asked the federal government to pay for this and other controversial resource management plans.

Three guesses as to why, and the first two that are not "sage grouse" don't count, because it's the sage grouse.

According to Bennet's letter, the feds are pursuing an unprecedented effort to amend those resource plans to protect the greatest thing to pop out of the ground since the magnificent Redwoods of California – the gnarly sagebrush of grouseland.

"Fully funding these programs is an opportunity to protect the sage grouse through voluntary, rather than regulatory, conservation efforts," the lawmakers wrote.

If the resource management plans are a voluntary effort, we'd like to unvolunteer Grand Junction from participating.

Colorado School Voucher Fight May End at U.S. Supreme Court

by Joy Pullman,
The Heartland Institute

(Editor/GG: The Colorado Supreme Court's decision to void the Douglas County voucher program recently was generally seen in the legal world as a purely liberal and partisan pro-union, anti-charter school decision by our left wing, "progressive" court. The poor, biased reasoning of the majority on the court was even condemned by many liberal legal experts. But, as noted below, it will probably be reversed in federal court.)

The nation's first school-district-run voucher program, in Douglas County, Colorado, has been struck down by the state supreme court because it sends some money to religious schools. Colorado, like 36 other states, includes in its constitution a century-and-a-half-old anti-Catholic provision that forbids tax dollars from going to "sectarian" institutions "to keep taxpayers from supporting Catholic schools in addition to the public schools, which were generically Protestant."

Brittany Corona explains further:

Blaine Amendments, still found in about two-thirds of the states' constitutions, came about in the 1800s during a time when America's public schools were distinctly Protestant in orientation. The growing Catholic immigrant population found the Protestant public schools were inhospitable to their families because of their religious differences, so Catholics sought public funding to start their own schools. To maintain Protestant control of public education, Blaine Amendments were created. Blaine Amendments prohibited the public funding of any "sectarian" schools or institutions. It's important to note that the term "sectarian," during that period in time, was synonymous with "Catholic." In fact, after the passage of Blaine Amendments, the teaching of the Protestant religion remained in public schools for many years.

The Douglas County School District may appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, and a ruling there would have national school choice implications:

Although a state supreme court has the final word on how to interpret its state constitution, the U.S. Supreme Court could rule that a provision of a state constitution (or a state court's interpretation of that provision) is itself unconstitutional under the U.S. Constitution. In this case, defenders of the program believe the Blaine Amendment entails unconstitutional discrimination against religious schools.

U.S. Supreme Court precedent does tilt towards vouchers. In 2002, the Court ruled in favor of Ohio's vouchers because the program, like Medicaid and food stamps, does not directly support religious institutions. The individual who receives the money may choose to use it at a religiously affiliated institution, or he may not. Given that, the Supreme Court ruled, vouchers are religiously neutral and therefore constitutional.

The great danger in moving vouchers towards the U.S. Supreme Court is its tilt since 2002 against First Amendment freedoms of conscience and faith. If the Court accepts the case at all, there's no telling whether this is an opportunity to overturn 37 discriminatory provisions in state constitutions and therefore expand school choice, or whether this may lead to further limits on public expressions of faith and therefore fewer opportunities to expand school choice.

As Jason Bedrick notes for the Cato Institute, tax credit scholarships are a legally safer school choice alternative, but they do not reach as many children as voucher programs. So we have here a series of cascading judgments about the prudence of various school choice strategies, which different choice supporters will answer differently. While we ponder, millions of children continue to go without access to the high-quality private schools a plurality of Americans recently told pollsters (see below) they wish their children could attend.

Sue the Tyrants! Colorado Joins Lawsuit Against Regulating Ditches and Ponds

by ColoradoPeakPolitics.com

A dozen states have lined up to challenge the feds new rule declaring that ditches and ponds are officially "Waters of the United States" so the government can do what it does best – regulate the heck out of our lives and property.

Attorney General Cynthia Coffman today announced that Colorado has joined in the challenge, filing a lawsuit in the U.S. District Court for the District of North Dakota to vacate the rules.

The western states are arguing that the feds simply do not have the authority to manage these resources – that's the job of individual states.

"Congress and the courts have repeatedly affirmed the states have primary responsibility for the protection of intrastate waters and land management," the attorney's general office said in a statement.

If the rules go into effect, landowners would have to get additional federal permits or face criminal charges and steep fines from the EPA and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

We can only hope that western states are as successful in knocking down this ridiculous rule, as they were in killing the Interior Department's redundant and expensive fracking regulations.

Gov. Hickenlooper was on the loosing side of that battle, sending out his flunkies to criticize the attorney general for daring to stand up for the state's interests.

It will be interesting to see whether Hick bucks this action as well, and sides with feds and their regulated mud puddles.

Allen West on Disgraceful Discharge of Green Beret

by Allen West,
AllenBWest.com

(Editor/GG: Man, this makes me angry. The liberal war on our soldiers, started by the Clintons and then expanded by an order of magnitude by traitor satan himself, Nobama, has caused permanent damage. God bless these poor soldiers who are trying to defend America. The Secretary of the Army, McHugh, should be fired immediately.)

Some things make you angry beyond comprehension. Consider that only one person has been held accountable in the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) scandal. Or how about Internal Revenue Service (IRS) employee Lois Lerner, losing her emails, pleading the Fifth and heading off to a taxpayer-funded, six-figure “retirement?” Did we ever find out who was responsible for the death of U.S. Border Patrol Agent Brian Terry in Operation Fast and Furious? Quite sure Eric Holder’s pulling down big cash for speaking engagements. How much must we endure of Secretary of State Hillary Clinton’s arrogance of officialdom? And anyone heard anything lately about U.S. Army deserter Bowe Bergdahl? Yet, an Army Green Beret must endure the crucible and disparaging assault of his combat record.

As reported by The Washington Times:

A board of inquiry has ruled the Army failed to substantiate its contention that a Green Beret hero murdered a suspected Taliban bombmaker, but nonetheless recommended a general discharge because of his battlefield conduct.

Major Matt Golsteyn had been stripped of his Silver Star and Special Forces tab by Army Secretary John McHugh after the officer told the CIA in a job interview polygraph that he had killed an unarmed bombmaker in Afghanistan in 2010.

The Army never charged MAJ Golsteyn. The Army convened a three-member board at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, in an attempt to slap him with an other-than-honorable discharge. Instead, he received a general discharge under honorable conditions.

We’ve written on this case several times and detailed this young warrior’s heroism in the face of the enemy. I just have to ask: who is Secretary McHugh to strip MAJ Golsteyn of his Silver Star and Special Forces tab — both of which he earned? How have we come to this point where political appointees feel they have some power over the men and women we send into harm’s way? Here we sit on the verge of the U.S. military perhaps making a decision to allow transgender individuals to serve in the Army. Yet, somehow we have an Army that’s hiding a deserter and punishing a man who faced the enemy.

We’re so very upside down in America. In case you needed to be reminded of MAJ Golsteyn’s exploits:

MAJ Golsteyn’s Silver Star narrative tells of a Special Forces soldier who repeatedly risked his life during a four-hour battle in Helmand province on Feb. 20, 2010. He organized an 80-man Green Beret/Marine Corps/Afghan force to hunt down Taliban firing on their forward operating base.

The Silver Star ranks third in precedence in combat valor awards, behind the Medal of Honor and the Army Distinguished Service Cross.

“Captain Golsteyn was alone running in the open through enemy gunfire that had over 80 men pinned down, and from the crow’s nest on top of FOB McQueary it looked like Captain Golsteyn was alone fighting 30 enemy fighters out in the poppy fields,” the narrative says.

So let me ask this: any of you believe Secretary McHugh’s done anything close to this in his life? Yes, I get the whole civilian oversight of the military, but I believe if we had civilians in oversight positions who’d served in the military and been on the receiving end of an ambush — we wouldn’t have this nonsense.

And what was the desire to go after MAJ. Golsteyn?

While the board of one colonel and two lieutenant colonels cleared the officer of the most serious charge of violating the law of armed conflict, it substantiated a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer.

His attorney, Phil Stackhouse, said he plans to appeal what he considers an inconsistent verdict because the conduct unbecoming charge was tied to MAJ Golsteyn’s killing of the Afghan, for which the board did not substantiate wrongdoing.

So what conduct was unbecoming of an officer who had no charges brought or substantiated against him? Could it be that MAJ. Golsteyn was Secretary McHugh’s target for some ill-intentioned reason? There seems to be some evidence to support that assertion.

The Fayetteville Observer, which covered the hearing, reported that the board at first rejected the prosecution’s attempt to enter the CIA interview transcript as evidence. But its legal adviser overruled the board. The board then tried to obtain the video over the weekend, but the CIA rejected the request. The board issued its opinion Sunday night.

Who was this “legal advisor” that overruled the board? It’s obvious this Army JAG officer interjected himself for some reason. If the charges against MAJ. Golsteyn weren’t substantiated, then he should’ve received an apology, been reinstated to the Green Beret and had his Silver Star re-awarded. The fact that the Army — actually, Secretary McHugh — has decided to make an example of this soldier is unconscionable and demeaning. Just imagine the message this sends to our Special Operations forces —especially after the disgusting report from The New York Times on our Navy SEALs. Who’d want to join the fight against the enemy knowing what happened to MAJ. Mathew Golsteyn? The lesson seems to be that the Army’s more protective of deserters than warriors — and where is ol’ Bowe Bergdahl after all?

So now, Golsteyn — who stood in a poppy field and single-handedly manned a recoilless rifle to repel an enemy attack — gets a general discharge under honorable conditions. He deserves nothing less than an honorable discharge. Ladies and Gentlemen, this is why we need men and women leading the Department of Defense who’ve had skin in the game — not just some flake political appointees. If the case of MAJ. Matthew Golsteyn had come across my desk, the answer is simple: promote that fella and tell him to keep kicking the enemy in the arse.

Unfortunately, the maxim of Alexander the Great has come to pass here in America: “I am not afraid of an army of lions led by a sheep; I am afraid of an army of sheep led by a lion.”

Call up Secretary McHugh and tell him he’s ill-equipped to pass judgment on lions.

Supreme Justice: EPA Rule to Kill Coal Bites the Dust

by ColoradoPeakPolitics.com

Buried underneath the avalanche of recent praise and criticism for various Supreme Court decisions was this little gem that’s gone unnoticed: The EPA’s rule to regulate emissions from coal-fired power plants was crushed in a 5-4 decision.

The EPA was spanked for failing to take the costs of their demands into consideration — a price tag industry put at nearly $10 billion for a meager $6 million in benefits.

According to the Daily Sentinel’s Gary Harmon, there was much rejoicing from the Colorado Mining Association (CMA), not so much from the self-appointed guardians of the planet.

“This throws a significant monkey wrench into the Obama administration’s plans and could portend what considerations might influence a court’s decision” on pending rules intended to reduce carbon emissions from coal plants, said Stuart Sanderson, executive director of the Colorado Mining Association.

Meanwhile, greenies formed a pity circle and wailed that blah, blah, blah, we’re all going to die.

Let’s just skip to what we really care about:

While the ruling doesn’t take away any pressure on Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association, which owns the Colowyo Mine near Craig, from another federal lawsuit,

“it should serve as a reminder to regulators of the importance of evaluating costs when considering regulations,” said Lee Boughey, spokesman for the association.

U.S. Rep. Scott Tipton pushed through legislation in the House last week that would give states the option of judicial review before implementing expensive mandates that consumers will be forced to underwrite.

Bully for the House. Let’s hope the Senate shows the same common sense and passes Tipton’s bill.

Top Three Contenders for the U.S. Military New Handgun

by Bob Owens,
BearingArms.com

We're just a week away from the fourth and final industry day where handgun manufacturers will meet to discuss the U.S. Military's requirements for the XM17 Modular Handgun System (MHS). The XM17 project winner will be a replacement for the venerable, but now worn-out M9s made by Beretta that have been the nation's top military pistol for 30 years.

The meeting will take place on July 7-8th at New Jersey's Picatinny Arsenal. [At the printing of this article in the Sentinel, this will have just taken place, so the outcome will be shared in a future issue.]

The winner of the MHS contract is expected to be awarded the contract for roughly 280,000 full-size handguns for the Army, more than 200,000 for the Navy, Air Force, and Marines, and perhaps as many as 10,000 compact variants for concealed carry by military and DoD civilian law enforcement and clandestine special operations use.

While numerous companies will be vying for the lucrative contract, it's going to be very tough for companies to meet the demands of the contract, which are designed to obtain the best handgun possible based upon new advances in the field of combat human factors and anthropomorphic research.

Official requirements for the XM17 program include:

- non-caliber specific
- modular grips
- grip that accepts a wide-range of hand-sizes (5th to 95th percentile)
- ability to accept different fire-control devices/action types
- ability to accept various magazine sizes
- suppressor compatible
- ability to mount "target enablers" (lights, lasers, etc) on a picatinny rail
- match-grade accuracy (90% or better chance 4" circle at 50 meters)
- low felt recoil impulse

You may be surprised at the top contenders... and at which popular companies don't come close to making the cut.

STI-Detronics STX

Who?

Neither Detronics Defense nor STI are household names, nor are they even particularly well-known among other gun companies. Detronics Defense is primarily a research and development "skunkworks" focused on creating designs and patents around combat human factors research, while STI is primarily known as the maker of high-end competition handguns and elite military and law enforcement units. Together, they form a singular Davids in a roomful of handgun industry Goliaths.

The two companies formed a strategic partnership just two weeks ago to build a number of different modular handguns using patents held by Detronics, incorporating STI's vaunted engineering and production prowess. Looking roughly like a 1911, the STX uses a drop-in striker box system that can be easily swapped out with other trigger packs, is caliber agnostic, uses a truly modular frame and grip that enables either a long or a short grip to be installed, has felt recoil up to 40% less than comparable designs, and is perhaps the only contender that exceeds the MHS spec for fitting various hand sizes.

Interestingly enough, the STX is also the only metal-framed handgun thought to be in contention for the contract, which may be a dual blessing for the upstart team.

The U.S. military has never fielded a polymer-frame firearm to the masses, and there have been persistent rumors that the military has found problems with polymer handgun frames holding up in certain operational environments.

While STI-Detronics may not have the production capability of the other contending companies, that could be rendered an irrelevant point if the MHS contract is awarded based on an intellectual property package (IPP) basis, and is produced in-house by the Army.

Sig Sauer P320 MHS

A MHS variant of the Sig Sauer P320 will feature a frame-mounted manual thumb safety and come in a neutral color.

Courtesy image

In our estimation, the MHS variant of the Sig P320 is one of the top polymer-frame handguns in the MHS competition, and along with the STI-Detronics STX and the Beretta APX, make up the only truly modular designs competing for the contract. The P320 MHS is platform agnostic, and can swap out frames and top ends on the same serialized chassis system to meet the requirements for a full-size and compact pistol. The grip is also believed to meet the 5th-to-95th percentile handgun grip requirements. It remains to be seen if the P320 MHS's relatively high bore axis and relatively conventional grip geometry will generate more felt recoil than some of the other contenders.

Beretta APX

The APX was designed for next-generation military service.

Beretta's M9 has been the workhorse pistol design for the U.S. military for the past 30 years, and the company would love for their APX to be the U.S. military's pistol for the next 30 years. Prototypes of the APX are in the hands of professionals at this moment, but they were not ready for us to fire when Beretta hosted its first ever Tactical Summit earlier this year. The grip angle and low bore axis suggest that it might be softer-shooting than the P320, but until we get our hands on an APX on the firing line, we'll have no way to know for sure.

The Could Have Beens

Smith & Wesson/General Dynamics M&P

General Dynamics and Smith & Wesson have publicly announced plans to enter a design in the MHS competition, but unlike the designs from Beretta, Sig Sauer, and STI-Detronics, the frame of the M&P isn't modular. While end users can swap out the backstrap of the pistol to better fit certain hand sizes, the grip is an integral part of the frame. While well-established and a proven design, the M&P isn't particularly innovative. We're suspecting that the MHS variant is substantially different than current production M&Ps. If it isn't, the design doesn't stand a chance.

Glock

While the Glock is used by military forces around the world, and variants are approved for use in some specialized roles in the U.S. military, the Austrian company simply doesn't come close to meeting the specs of the of MHS program. The Glock 22 is a likely entrant, but is only there for show.

HK

HK's VP series is mentioned as a MHS contender, but like the Glock and Smith & Wesson designs, isn't modular, and doesn't appear to be caliber-neutral.

Walther PPQ

The PPQ is a joy to shoot and one of my personal favorites among striker-fired pistols. Unfortunately, it suffers from all the same MHS specification deficiencies as the HK VP series.

Colt

We're only mentioning the bankruptcy-saddled company to address gray-haired readers that still insist that military should roll back the clock and reintroduce the 1911.

Um, no. Every pistol on this list is more accurate, reliable, has a higher magazine capacity, and better recoil control than the service grade 1911.

Politics & The Bible

From Pastor Jim

Jim Modlish has been in the ministry 49 years, pastoring churches large and small from upstate New York to western Washington. He holds a doctorate in theology, but frequently states: "I have education, but I got over it."

Southern Colorado natives, Jim and his wife, Linda, were happy to return to their home state in 2006. They started the Huerfano Community Bible Church in Walsenburg seven years ago, and that work has experienced excellent growth and the blessings of God. Pastor Modlish believes the Bible is the greatest political science textbook on earth, and that all current events should be examined under the searchlight of Scripture.

To Be or Not To Be

Some conservative commentators have expressed an earnest bewilderment concerning the apparent passive attitude of the American public over the recent Supreme Court gay marriage decision. If the people of the United States no longer want to submit to the God of the Bible, then they have to decide if their stand is worth the risks of having a godless nation. However, to claim that this nation was not established as a Christian nation is an erroneous proclamation.

Political science professors at the University of Houston assembled 15,000 writings from the founding Era in an effort to determine where the founders collected their ideas. Over a ten year period the researchers discovered that Baron Charles de Montesquieu was the man quoted most often by the Founding Fathers; with 8.3 percent of founders' quotes laid to his credit, Sir William Blackstone ranked second with 7.9 percent and John Locke received the bronze with 2.9 percent. Surprisingly, the investigators' findings revealed that the Bible was utilized by the architects of liberty four times more than Montesquieu or Blackstone; 34 percent of the founders' quotes came directly out of the Bible.

A lawyer friend once said that our government is no longer distributing justice by the biblically-based common law, but that we are now in the age of statutory law, which simply is law determined to be fact by the majority vote of the constituents within a jurisdiction or in some cases a majority vote of the Supreme Court.

Blackstone (1723-1780) expressed the pre-suppositional basis for law:

"Man, considered as a creature, must necessarily be subject to the laws of his Creator, for he is entirely a dependent being.... And, consequently, as man depends absolutely upon his Maker for everything, it is necessary that he should in all points conform to his Maker's will. This will of his Maker is called the law of nature.... These [laws laid down by God] are the eternal, immutable laws of good and evil.... This law of nature...dictated by God Himself is, of course, superior in obligation to any other. It is binding over all the globe, in all countries, and at all times: no human laws are of any validity if contrary to this.... The doctrines thus delivered we call the revealed or divine law, and they are to be found only in the Holy Scriptures.... Christianity is part of the law of the land."

The biblical heritage was so well understood during the early years of this nation, and the writings of the numerous founding fathers were so well known, that in later years the Supreme Court ruled according to the founders' intention keeping Biblical principles as the basis.

For example, in 1811 a court made a ruling which was subsequently cited by the Supreme Court which said in part: "Whatever strikes at the root of Christianity tends manifestly to the dissolution of civil government."

In 1844, a school in Philadelphia announced that it would teach its students morality, but not religion. Those educators believed that Christianity and the Bible were unnecessary to convey moral principles. The Court's response was: "Why can't the Bible be read and taught as a divine revelation; its general precepts expounded; and its glorious principles of morality inculcated? Where can the purest principles of morality be learned so clearly or so perfectly as from the New Testament?"

The Supreme Court ruled in 1892: "No purpose of action against religion can be imputed to any legislation, state or national, because this is a religious people.... This is a Christian nation." What would lead the Court to conclude that we are a Christian nation? This case was not long (only 16 pages in the Court records), but the Justices provided 87 different historical precedents to support its conclusions, quoting the Founding Fathers and their acts, as well as the acts of Congress and state governments.

Fast forward to 1947—Everson vs. Board of Education: The Court adopted the phrase "separation of church and state" to the establishment clause of the Constitution.

1962—Engel vs. Vitale: It was decided that the following prayer should be thrown out of public schools: "Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee; and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers, and our country."

1963—Abington School District vs. Schempp: It was determined that the Bible should be eliminated from public schools.

1973—Roe vs. Wade: Abortion became sponsored by the government.

1980—Stone vs. Graham: The Ten Commandments were ejected from all schools because the students might "read, meditate upon, and perhaps venerate and obey them which is not a permissible objective."

Thomas Jefferson summarized it well: "God, who gave us life, gave us liberty. And can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are of the gift of God, that they are not to be violated but with His wrath? Indeed, I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just and that His justice cannot sleep forever."

A Sheepdog Barks!

Time for some Sheepdog potpourri. I saw this great poster somewhere recently: "So let me get this straight...liberals say having a universal background check and registering all guns is not an infringement on someone's rights...but asking someone to prove they are a U.S. citizen and show an ID card to vote is?" That's a good one. WOOF! There was another good one that said "SCOTUS (That's the Supreme Court of the United States – you have to memorize that one) said in their "SCOTUScare" ruling that all 50 states have to recognize same-sex marriage regardless of state laws and constitutions. Then, it would follow, that all 50 states (57 for Obama) must have to recognize our concealed carry permits, also." Makes perfect sense to me. What's good for the goose is good for the gander, no? WOOF!

And speaking of "SCOTUScare", check out these two items. The director of Obamacare in Connecticut gets a salary of $600,000 a year (with benefits) and they signed up 1,700 people last year. I didn't make that up. And the director of "Covered California", making a similar salary, just got a 27% raise and a $65,000 bonus even though his results were horrible. California fell over 300,000 people short of their sign-up goal and went $100,000,000 over budget. I didn't make that up either. This is so insane and there are similar results all over America and in Colorado.

Just in case you missed this I want to repeat what Obama's EPA (that's Environmental Protection Agency) Chief Gina McCarthy said about me, you readers, and maybe even a few more people in America when announcing new regulations. "You are not normal if you are a climate change denier." Not Normal! That offends me. And since I'm offended and I hope a few of you are also, I think we need to get rid of all the rainbow flags in America. Yes, that will fix that problem just like getting rid of the Confederate flag fixes the problem of deranged shooters. How can Gina say that about us? It's hurtful and not politically correct. WHINE!

I think I am normal. I am a normal, right-wing, gun-toting, tea party member that loves the Constitution, thinks America is exceptional, and goes to church. What's not normal about that? Well, you know what I mean. It's normal to my friends. BTW, an unidentified spokesman in the EPA said this "off the record." "These regulations are only symbolic. They will not impact CO2 levels, won't impact global storms, and won't impact global temperatures." Then what in blazes do we need them for? They certainly won't cause China and India to do one thing about "healing" the earth. She and the other LPSDs that promote this cp are the abnormal ones. They actually need psychiatric treatment. WOOF!

And here's the latest from our clueless commander in chief after he met with so called "military leaders" in the Pentagon this week. I say "so called" because I no longer respect them or their counsel. It is shameful that they would stand behind Obama on stage as he makes such stupid statements like he did. Real military leaders like we've had in the past would never do that. Their honor would require them to resign. Obama said many stupid things during the press conference but the stupidest one went like this: "Ideologies are not defeated with guns; they are defeated by better ideas and more attractive and more compelling visions." That has got to be the most stupid and wrong-headed comment ever made by a commander in chief in our history. Obama must not have studied any history because he certainly doesn't understand history. Just in the last century the communists, the fascists, and the Nazis were not defeated by good ideas. They were defeated by guns, bombs and soldiers. Destroying ISIS will take the same methods. Obama's Kumbaya spirit and vision will NOT win the day. Of course he doesn't intend to destroy ISIS or any other Islamic terrorist groups. He is sympathetic to their cause and beliefs. AND that is why no honorable military leader should stand beside or behind him at a podium. WOOF!

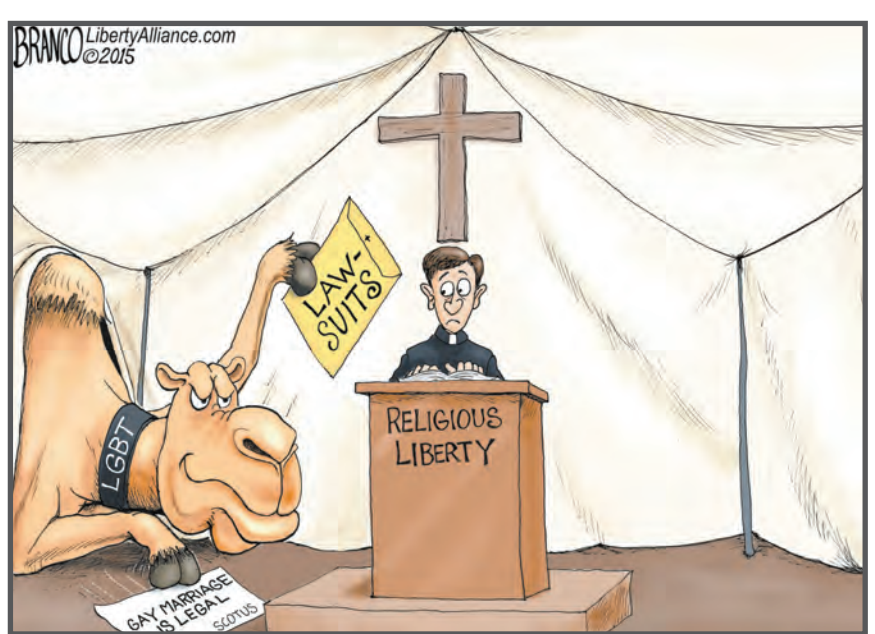

Here are a few more "Only In A Liberal Progressive America" stories for you:

OIALPA: Amtrak. An Inspector General (IG) report of Amtrak costs revealed that some employees were being paid for 40 hours of work IN A SINGLE DAY! And other employees were being paid 40 hours of overtime work WITHOUT ANY REGULAR HOURS. Reminder: Amtrak is heavily subsidized with taxpayer money so people can ride the train on me and you. Now the IG went on to say: "Some of these trends and patterns may be justified because of the complexity of union agreement rules." REALLY? Well, that explains it. Amtrak employees are covered by 14 different unions and 23 different bargaining agreements. A review by the Manhattan Institute concluded that "even if all is legit under the union contracts, it gives a great window into why U.S. Rail is so screwed up." That's what we used to call a BFO – Blinding Flash of the Obvious. I can fix this insanity in 5 minutes, couldn't you? WOOF!

OIALPA: New York City. Mayor DeBlasio, an extreme LPSD, announced that all New York City schools will holiday over the Lunar New Year. If this stupid LPSD trend continues to try to cover and please everyone, it is only a matter of time until they take off for things like Burkina Faso Independence Day or Mongolian National Heritage Day. Once that happens, kids will go to school about 20-25 days a year! Stop the insanity. WOOF!

Late Breaking News: The Secretary of Defense told Congress yesterday that we are training a whopping total of 60 soldiers to defeat and destroy ISIS. OMG, we are doomed. WOOF!

The Real Labor Report: Americans NOT in the Labor Force Soar by 640,000 to Record 93.6 Million

by George Gramlich

Yup. Last week’s labor force report by the BLS (that is, the Bureau of Lies and Scams) was highly touted in the main stream media as great and a sign that the economy is growing. More pablum for the masses. It was a total disaster.

Let’s talk about how they get their numbers. They have a model they use that they input various statistics into. A lot of those stats are estimates based on other models. The number that finally pops out is then adjusted by a “seasonal” adjustment factor, that in reality, is a dreamed up fudge factor they use to get the number they want. Bottom line, the numbers are ALWAYS suspect and are subject to a lot of political pressure to show a rosy picture.

The BLS’s Establishment Survey showed that 223,000 new jobs were created. What was not told to you was that the survey showed 640,000 workers LEFT the labor force giving us a record 93.6 million NOT looking for work. The labor participation rate was a shocking 62.6% matching the low in September, 1977 when President Carter tried to destroy the U.S. economy.

What is possibly even more disturbing, is that in a continuing trend, the survey shows that the number of part-time jobs added in June was 161,000 but the number of full-time jobs dropped by 349,000! We have LESS full-time workers now than in November, 2007 even though our population has risen by 17.7 million since 11/2007!

Also note that the unemployment rate for youth 16 to 19 rose dramatically to 21.4% from 17.8% in ONE month. And the number of jobs for self-employed, unincorporated (small businesses) decreased in June by a whopping 427,000! This folks is recession level numbers.

Overall, most of the jobs added to the economy in the last 5 years have been low skill, low paying jobs (service industry) that in no way moves the economy forward. Government regulations (EPA, OSHA, IRS), obscene tax levels, free trade policies (that push our jobs overseas to people making $1 a day), illegal immigration, the obscene policy of importing foreign labor slaves via the H1-B visa program to replace American workers and minimum wage laws have turned a once thriving, manufacturing based economy into a part-time, low paying service economy where government hand-outs (welfare, unemployment insurance) are needed for tens of millions of American workers to survive. That, folks, is the end result of socialism. You wind up voting for the politicians who will give you the biggest handout cause you can’t make it by yourself. The problem is that we have run out of money. Greece will look like a musical comedy when our day comes.

The Real Reason NBC and Univision Dumped Donald Trump

by Michelle Jesse,
AlleBWest.com

The backlash from 2016 candidate Donald Trump’s recent comments about Mexican immigrants continues to spread, as if on cue, with NBC Universal now joining Univision in cutting ties.

But could the real reason the offense and outrage at Trump’s comments is so vehement be because they strike a chord of truth? To be clear, I am NOT in any way in favor of blanket statements characterizing ANY group of people — Mexicans or otherwise — as many are interpreting Trump’s. But could Trump actually have a point?

Ann Coulter suggests he does, as Breitbart.com reports:

The pushback against Donald Trump’s comments about Mexican immigrants is emotional, knee-jerk and not fact-based, according to political commentator and author of the new book ‘Adios, America’ Ann Coulter.

Monday, NBC announced it was cutting ties with Trump following the backlash over the GOP presidential contender’s view that Mexican immigrants are bringing their problems to the U.S.

“They’re bringing drugs. They’re bringing crime. They’re rapists. And some, I assume, are good people,” Trump said during his campaign announcement earlier this month.

Coulter, who devotes a goodly portion of her new book to immigrant crime and the media’s failure to report fully on the “immigrant crime wave,” points out that arguments against Trump amount to a straw man claim that “not all Mexicans are rapists.”

“The point is: Why should America be taking in ANY RAPISTS?” Coulter wrote in an email to Breitbart News. “Were we short on rapists? By definition, we’re talking about people who have no right to be here. If Mexico is sending us 2 rapists – THEY’RE SENDING US RAPISTS.”

As Breitbart.com reports, Coulter argues that the facts actually support Trump’s comments about rapists, imported drugs and crime:

1. On rape: The Centers for Disease Control have reported Hispanic children are seven times more likely to give birth between the ages of 10-14 than white children, while ICE (reported by Breitbart News) deported over 860 sex offenders from the state of Texas during the first half of FY 2014, 27 percent of who were convicted of sex crimes against children.

2. On drugs: Coulter argues the majority of heroin and meth in the U.S. is being brought in by Mexicans — supported by The Washington Post’s report that Mexico and Columbia “account for more than 90 percent of the U.S. heroin supply, and nearly all of it is smuggled into this country by Mexican traffickers.”

The problem, according to Coulter, is that, while the evidence surrounds, the government is not good at collecting or disseminating specific statistics about immigrant crime.

Or maybe the government just doesn’t want us to know the truth. Perhaps it doesn’t match the current administration’s immigration agenda?

“Why don’t we know exactly how many drug dealers in our prisons are foreigners? Why is our [government] refusing to tell us how many immigrants have been convicted of rape or murder in the U.S.? The [government] won’t tell us and the media cover up immigrant crime, while broadcasting every immigrant who wins a spelling bee. The facts that exist suggest that the immigrant crime wave is enormous,” Coulter wrote, pointing out that her book elaborates on those points.

Whatever the truth is, what’s happened in the case of Trump’s recent comments is that knee-jerk offense, political correctness, and outrage once again have effectively silenced productive debate on an important issue facing our country — in this case, immigration.

Meanwhile Coulter noted that instead of have a debate, the media’s reaction has been to remain silent.

“Incidentally, if Trump and I were wrong, the media wouldn’t have to censor us. But whenever anyone speaks the truth about our current immigration policies: BANNED. Yes, that’s how many facts they have on their side!” she concluded.

Whatever your feelings about Donald Trump and his viewpoints, you’ve got to give him some credit for speaking his mind without regard for what important voting constituent he might be ping off. He’s the anti-panderer in the midst of much hypocrisy and double-speak (Yes, I’m looking at YOU, Hillary Clinton.). And maybe, instead of dismissing comments like Trump’s out of hand and igniting blind outrage, we’d do better to let them ignite productive debate from all sides of the issue.
